EDITORIAL

One cover, two magazines, one team. OLYMPIACOS ASSOCIATION OF THE FANS OF PIRAEUS. The We Are Olympiacos magazine was created timidly two years ago from the inner need in every one of us to bring the fans of the team closer. To open up some closed doors for you so you would get to see all the protagonists through our eyes the way we experience them on a daily basis.

We are happy that we are not alone anymore. We are happy to have a little 'sibling', the Football team's and the Amateur Club's magazine and we are looking forward to browse through 'OLYMPIACOS' with you.

We have chosen to have the same cover, we have chosen to share a common centerpiece in this issue and to exchange many other features and articles in this issue as well as in the ones to follow. Why? Because our main goal is that you enjoy, you, the Olympiacos' fans, both magazines. Because you are the heart of this team.

Nikos and Vassilis, Jenny, Andreas and Antonis, we all together have a common goal. To offer you, the readers, the joy and ability to get to know better everyone who plays for the 'reds'.

So, have a good read and be sure that the best is yet to come. Because We Keep On Dreaming and Together We Fight. Because We Are Olympiacos...

BRANDON PAUL

UNBREAKABLE

Some people are born with a charisma. Some become charismatic with hard work and persistence. In the case of Brandon Paul however, these two factors got to combine. The American guard of Olympiacos unfolds through "We Are Olympiacos" the story of his life and proved that nothing is stronger than the human mind.

«An athlete since the ultrasound!»

On April 30, 1991, Lynda and Cliff Sr Paul welcomed in the world the second of their three sons. "I grew up in Chicago, Illinois. I have two brothers. Darius is 25 years old and my older brother Cliff Jr is 31. My father had been a cop for twenty years, however, he has retired. He lives and works in San Antonio. My mother has now her own company is a financial consultant. They both enjoy their life in San Antonio, where it's hot", Brandon Paul said making an initial introduction of his family.

Being involved with sports did not happen at random. It was purely genes. "My mom used to play basketball at collegiate level and had a great impact on my sports life. Also, my dad, who had played American football at semi-pro level, 'pushed' me and my brothers to try different sports at a very young age. We even tried karate!"

Basketball hadn't been his original choice, it was however his destiny! "I played football for a year and I was simply good because I was quick and athletic. However, I wasn't that good... It takes a different 'spirit' to play American football". He then turned to basketball, a sport which he was born to play and his mother had realized that when she had been pregnant with him! "She had told me that when she had an ultrasound she noticed that my legs were more developed than what's usual".

The real reason he turned to basketball however, was his big brother. "Cliff Jr had been very good up until high-school and very clever. He finally though chose academia. However, thanks to him, I started playing against older kids that were bigger than kids my age. It was a great influence for me. I always tried to play with him and his friends. There were times though that they wouldn't let me play with them, so I would be going to my mom and she would make them play me!" he says laughing.

«Both a mom and a coach!»

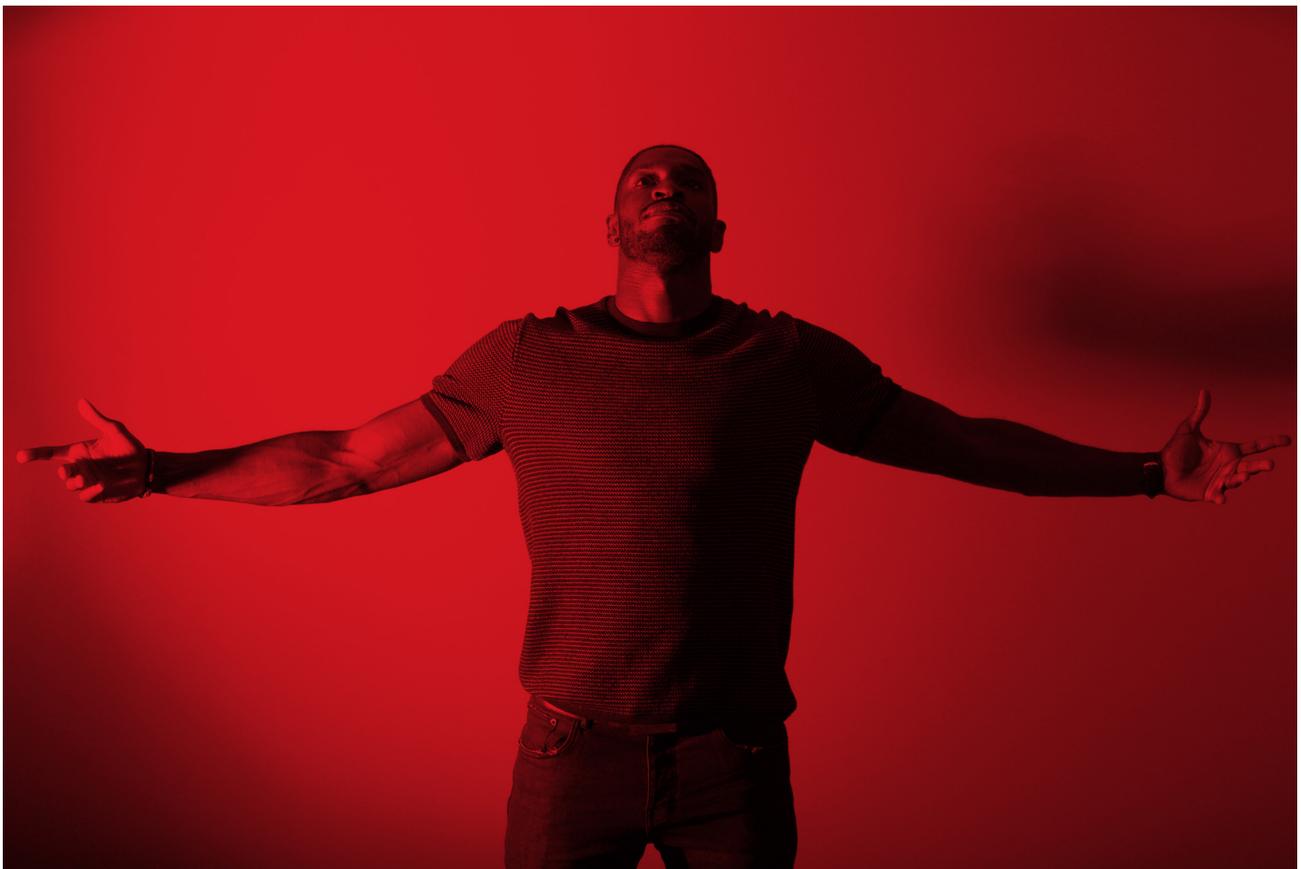

Lynda Paul - who had discerned her son's talent - was not a typical mom that was happy to make ... interventions to neighborhood games. She rather took matters into her own hands!"I joined a team, but they wouldn't use me the right way. They would be playing me the wrong position. My mother noticed that and decided to become my coach. So, she created a program for me and my friends that we all followed for a few years. This was after high school. It was a successful program".

How is though to have your mom as your coach? "It was hard, because she was my mom and that role never changes. At the same time, she was my coach though. When the game was over, other kids got to go home, but I would be going home with the coach. This is hard sometimes, but it sure helped me a lot. She was very tough with me and she obviously had every right to be. I was the best player on the team and she always expected more from me. More than anybody else...".

His mother built the foundation and then let him evolve basketball wise. So, for many years now, their relationship is the traditional one between mother and son. "I don't ask her that much about basketball anymore, but mainly about all related to finances and business. I recently bought some property and needed her advice. We talk about small things where she can help me with mother's instinct as well as with her knowledge of things. Mom always knows better!"

«I became the man of the house»

Everything seemed ideal for a time. Two parents that do the best they can and three happy kids. Nevertheless, there had been a tough moment that forced the American guard to abruptly mature and discover his leading nature. "I came home from school and saw my mother crying. She told me we were at war. I was 10 in 2001 when the Towers were attacked. It was then that my dad was transferred at a military base in Spain in regard to security. It had also happened in the past, he had been at the Persian Gulf. However, this was the first time he would be leaving us behind. It was something that I felt I couldn't manage at the moment. I was very young. I remember myself crying all the time. I was different at school. My friends would be always asking why I had changed. I got into a fight one day. I started yelling at my classmates and then broke down in the classroom. It was the first time I was exhibiting that kind of emotion".

Despite the initial shock and despite he wasn't even the oldest boy of the family, Brandon Paul proved - according to his father's words in a previous interview - to be a leader. "When I was leaving for Spain, he told me: "Dad don't worry. I'll be taking care of the family". It really was very comforting. And he actually did that. He always was something like a leader with his brothers. He would be more mature than they were".

This six month ordeal had a long term positive impact on his character. "I somehow became the man of the house. My purpose had been to keep the family united and that challenge helped me mature earlier than most of my friends».

«Simpkins, college and disappointment»

Regardless of what was happening in his life, basketball had always been a reference point for him. When he “left” his mom’s project, he found his mentor in the face of the former three-time champion with the Chicago Bulls, Dickey Simpkins. “He was my mentor and still is family to me. He was team mates with Michael Jordan and all those great players. We still communicate often and was the person that had the greatest impact on my career. Then came college and Illinois. I loved it! They were the best three years of my life. I made a lot of friends, who are still my friends today. I played twice for the NCAA. I has some very good experiences and looking back, I wouldn’t be changing a thing... I was enjoying partying, lessons and obviously basketball. I got my Bachelor’s in Recreation, Sport & Tourism in only 3.5 years, because I was also taking summer courses. I specialized in hotels. I had choices, but I chose hotels because I really like traveling. I worked on that area”.

He experienced his first serious injury in Illinois. He broke his jaw and had to be sidelined for six weeks. But looking back now, that injury was less important compared to what he got to experience next.

Not been drafted by the NBA was disappointing. But in the long run, he got to realize that it was for his own benefit. “I had expectations. Many relatives, close friends and neighbors had come to support me. But unfortunately I didn’t get drafted. The truth is I was disappointed, but I knew I was going to get a chance. I now believe that not been drafted was the best thing for me, than having been drafted in the second round. Because if your get drafted in the second round, the team owns your rights for 3 to 4 years. Since that didn’t happen, I had complete control of my career”.

«Against fate's games»

Obstacles that turned out to be blessings continue following him with persistence. "For my rookie year, I went to Russia to join Nizhny, but I didn't like it there. I didn't like the way the management and the coach were treating the players. I had very good team mates that really helped me a lot. I still keep contact with some of the guys. However, the situation was not a good one and I had to go. I felt I was really close to depression during that time. When I got out of that situation, I realized that I'm much stronger mentally than I gave myself credit for. All of the above taught me to be patient and not let other people influence how I feel inside".

Returning to his home land was unfortunately going to be even more traumatic, literally as well as metaphorically. He joined the developmental team of the Cleveland Cavaliers, at the time coach Blatt was still with the Cavs and had Will Cherry with his roster! However, in just the second game wearing the jersey of the Canton Charge... "I suffered a rupture of the rotor in my left shoulder. In simple words, my shoulder got torn up and I wasn't able to finish the season. I lived through a really tough time, because it was the first time I suffered such a serious injury. The second time though, when I suffered the same injury in the right shoulder this time, it was much more painful mentally wise than physically. It was such bad luck. That summer, I had the chance to play the summer camp with the Chicago Bulls and for me that was something like a dream comes true. Nevertheless, I got injured during practices and I had to undergo a second surgery in such a short time. I would constantly think "why is this happening to me?" I had come across some real good opportunities, but they were short lived due to injuries and I was wondering if I was ever going to play again at a high level».

«And a third injury»

Due to the injuries, he did not get any offers. He finally returned to the G League and the Canton Charge. Everything started to get back on track until ... "A little before the playoffs and while five NBA teams had shown interest in signing me, I got injured once again. The same injury. I tore my left shoulder. It was somewhere at that point that I began breaking down. I underwent a third surgery and my agent was getting no offers. Jordi Fernandez, who had been my coach and is from Barcelona, told me that a Spanish team, Badalona, wanted to sign me. My agent said he didn't know anything about that, so I told him, I went to Badalona and changed agents! I fired him and hired the one I'm still with, Adam Pensack. He's awesome".

Luck was beginning timidly smiling to him... "I played for the Spanish League and I was living in Badalona that is 10 km far from Barcelona. I loved my time there. I had great team mates and a good season. In the summer following that season, I played for the summer league with the Charlotte Hornets and then with the Philadelphia Sixers. I did not find a guaranteed NBA contract though and despite having had offers from G-League teams and some small ones in Europe, I chose to go back home and work on my game. Finally, in December, I got an offer from Anadolu Efes to play for the Euroleague".

«The first meeting with Olympiacos»

In the 2016-17 season, Brandon Paul “touched” the ticket to the Euroleague final four. Olympiacos however cancelled that for him. “I played for Efes and I truly enjoyed it. We had a very good team and we were playing very well, but we lost to Olympiacos in the quarter finals and with that, we lost the chance to go to the final four. We had won a game at the SEF then and needed two more victories at home. But we got to lose one of the two games we played at home and then we lost the 5th game at the SEF”.

The Turkish team nevertheless allowed him to take the step that helped him realize a big dream of his. “After Efes, a lot of teams were interested in having me play for them in the summer league. At first I thought to not go through this, because I was getting older and wanted to enjoy my summer vacation. But then I thought about it and decided that if opportunities keep coming my way, I need to make the most of them. Dallas called me and told my agent that if he plays with us, he’s going to definitely be in the starting five and will have 30 minutes per game. So I said, OK, I’ll do it. We played very well in the Orlando Summer League, we won 1st place and then I went to Las Vegas with Cleveland that also guaranteed playing time. After three games, my agent was talking with 4 or 5 different teams that wanted to sign me. But then the Spurs came and he said ‘yes’ immediately. I remember that after the game, while I was still at the summer league, I saw so many calls on my phone. I really didn’t know what was going on. My agent told me about the Spurs and I was really excited!”

«He told her with a pair of socks!»

The first person he told about the new destination in his career was - and righteously so - his mom. "My mom had always been a Spurs fan. She used to love their style of playing and her favorite player had been Tim Duncan. That night, after the game, I got a phone call from the General Director, R. C. Buford, who congratulated me and told me that he had given my number to coach Popovich to call me in the next days. However, I was not allowed to tell anyone I had signed at that time. I even told my family a few days later! So, I returned home early and my mom was wondering why I was home that early, since the summer league was still in progress. I told her at first that I was tired, but she didn't believe me. She knew this was not the case. A few days later, she came to my apartment and I asked her: "With which NBA team would you like to see me playing for?" She said: "It's nice in Miami. It's hot. I'd like to go there sometime". I then tell her: "What do you think of San Antonio?" She replies: "It's my favorite team!" I had already put on the bed a pair of Spurs socks and I tell her, look ... We hugged and cried at that moment".

It was the moment of vindication for the battle he had been giving against all adversities. "It was a unique experience. All the more, I had the opportunity to be playing together with some great players. Manu got to retire the next year, so it was a real honor to have played with him. He's great. A great player, a great team mate, a great person. The same goes for Tony Parker. They really helped me in my first year. I was a rookie in the NBA, but older from some of the guys. Also, coach Popovich is of the greatest coaches in all sports, not just basketball. I sincerely appreciate the time I have spent with the Spurs, I felt I was part of a big family. I had some very beautiful moments. I had some good games, but then I watched a lot of them from the bench and that's tough. The season is long, line ups change often, but as a rookie, you learn to sit down, watch, and learn any maybe play sometimes".

Although he had signed a two year contract, next season did not find him with the Spurs. "There had been many changed, they didn't know if Manu was going to retire, they didn't know if Kawhai was coming back. The whole situation was very liquid. So they could not guarantee anything in regard to my playing time, because there were other issues for them to take care before anything else. I had many offers from 5-6 NBA teams for a two way contract. But I wasn't willing to do that in that point of my career".

It was a few months before December came and he got to decide what his new destination was going to be. "I joined the Zhejiang Golden Bulls and enjoyed it. We had a good team the staff was amazing and so were my team mates. Marcus Denmon was on the team with me, who had played for Panathinaikos and I had known him from playing against one another at College. It was a good season because we qualified for the playoffs and that alone had been the greatest achievement in the history of the team!"

«I wanted to experience the atmosphere at the SEF»

He went through a lot of offers this summer. But he chose to wear the 'reds' jersey. "I have had some offers from Euroleague and Chinese teams, where I was offered a lot of money. I also had some offers from the NBA on two way contracts, but I didn't want to do that. I thought a lot about it. I talked with coach Blatt about what he wanted to do this season and chose Olympiacos. I wanted to come to a team where I would be winning. I wanted to be part of a big program. I remembered the atmosphere the Olympiacos' fans make and wanted to be part of it. I wanted to experience that. I expect the fans to pack the gym at every game and push us to victories. I went to some of their soccer games and the atmosphere had been amazing. They told me it's the same at the basketball games, so I can't wait".

It's not only the atmosphere though that he can't wait to experience... "My biggest dream is to win a championship. I have won titles in junior leagues, however, what I really want is a championship title at a high level and I hope it comes with Olympiacos. I have a very good feeling for this season. We have players with whom we are on the same page. It's true that we are still putting the pieces together, because we have had a lot of people absent due to injuries and the national teams, but I'm excited. There's a lot of talent and I think we have too much potential. I believe this is going to be one of the strongest Euroleague competitions ever. There are many names coming from the NBA and many players that have returned to the league. Everybody can beat everyone else. It's going to be a very tough season, but also a very entertaining one».

Did you know that...

- In 2009 he visited a hospital with a friend and met with an 8-year old kid that was sick, which changed his take on the world. "He taught me that basketball is just a sport. I love basketball, it's my job, however it's not the most important thing in the world. Watching a sick kid, that in theory had very little to be happy about, being that excited, offered me a new perspective on life. Everybody thinks that we think about basketball 24/7. I only think about basketball when I need to be thinking about basketball».
- He "sacrificed" his graduation to work and properly prepare for the NBA draft...
- There hasn't been a summer he has stopped working. Even during vacation time, he's in the company of trainers, because he wants to constantly be in shape.
- He's really attuned to many social issues and communicates that through his social media. "I'm interested in social issues and especially in bullying. I have witnessed it being done, I have suffered from it. It's really ugly. I wish I could stop it».
- He recently became the co-owner of a small Chicago restaurant. His associate is a good friend of his from high school.
- One of his new hobbies (except for traveling, visiting nice restaurants, Netflix and HBO), is fashion. He got to attend the runway in a lot of fashion shows in Milan during the summer.

BLATT MARTINS it's a tie

They are the head coaches of Olympiacos in the two most popular sports in Greece. Football and basketball or else Pedro Martins and David Blatt.

Despite the fact that both of them are in their second season with Olympiacos, they had never had the chance to talk as friends, taking some precious time off the pressure of the bench.

From the moment that chance was offered, not only did they take advantage of it, but they discuss on how basketball influences football and vice versa, they shot free throws, agreed to talking over coffee, since they live in the same neighborhood and they got to exchange ... coaches boards!

Olympiacos was always of course the epicenter of the discussion, as well as the health issue David Blatt has been coping with, who once again showed how we are all supposed to face all kinds of problems that affect our lives.

What does “Olympiacos mean to you”:

David Blatt: «First of all, it's a great honor and pleasure to be here with coach Martins. I feel lucky to meet with my colleague in this great club. Listening that you haven't had the chance to watch any basketball game live, I'm inviting you on behalf of our family to come to the gym and watch a game. And since you have been doing such a great job, I might want you to sit next to me and tell me what to do! You've been doing an amazing job and we are all proud of you and the football team.

Olympiacos is a team with a great tradition, great history, a very significant club. It's a part of the life and the heart of the fans. When you work for such a club, you feel the passion and the importance of being part of that history and tradition».

Pedro Martins: «It's a great joy to be sitting here with coach Blatt. I congratulate you on who you are and what kind of coach you have been for Olympiacos. Olympiacos is the same thing for me. It's passion. We have been working for a big family that has a huge tradition as the top club, not just in Greece, but in Europe as well. It's my great joy to be working with all those people that passionately love the team. We want to be winning and give joy to everyone, because the fans breathe and live for Olympiacos, so it's a great joy and motivation for me to be working for this team».

Mr. Blatt, do you watch football? Mr. Martins, what's your relationship with basketball?

D.B.: «Growing up in the States, football or 'soccer' as we call it wasn't the most popular sport. Only when I came to Europe, 37 years ago, I recognized that the top sport in the world is football and not American football, as I had thought, having played that as a kid. Throughout these years, I understood how the game is played, the plethora of tactics and the basic principles of the sport. I have great appreciation for some wonderful athletes and stars you have in the game and the fact that the coaches are able to coordinate 11 players on the court. I have problems with five and you have to do that with 11! Being able to present such a beautiful sport impresses me and I appreciate football for that reason».

P.M.: «I like basketball but I have to admit and be honest before you that I haven't watched any high level game. Mostly at school and some games on TV. Football takes up so much of our time, that sometimes we get to forget the rest of the sports. After football, basketball is the best sport in the world for me. I love it, but I don't have the time to watch more of it».

D.B.: «My players watch your games. They came to watch the last two games for the Champions League (i.e Krasnodar, Tottenham) and saw you good you played. I felt they were inspired, because they were better players to the practice. So I'm going to tell them to continue coming to watch you!».

P.M.: «It's the same as in last season. Fortounis and Leonardo were coming to all your games. They could feel that great Euroleague atmosphere. Basketball is also complicated though. I can understand many things that we also implement with football, like complex guarding at corners and fouls, we take that from basketball or even some situations we exercise, we borrow them from basketball as well. So your sport is very complex as well. It might happen sometimes, but generally, you cannot change the game in two minutes with football. Sometimes, you might win in the last minute, but changing a negative result is not as easy like it is in basketball».

D.B.: «I have a question for your coach that I have been contemplating for quite some time. The game against Tottenham ended with a tie between two great teams, but I have the feeling that Olympiacos is the superior team. Taking into consideration the general performance, Olympiacos played better, but the game ended tied. Since in basketball, at the end of the 40 minutes, the better will always be winning, because it's in the nature of the sport, does the same axiom apply to football? Can a team that hasn't played well and maybe does not deserve to win, actually win the game?».

P.M.: «Yes, it's possible. Some teams that are not that good can have good tactics and play smart. We can understand that the opponent is strong, but we can adjust our strategies and be strong too. Football is played with the legs, not with the arms. In basketball you can take 70 shots and make 65 of them. In football however, you have the goalkeeper, the field might not be in good condition. Our passion with football has to do with the fact that the last team can beat the first one. I don't think that it's the same in basketball».

D.B.: «I don't think so either».

P.M.: «According to my opinion, that's the difference. The last team can beat the first one due to the condition of the playing field. Even because some players don't have a good day, which is something you have to face as well. You may be having a good strategy, but some player is out of shape and whatever you have worked on during the week gets thrown away. Our jobs are different because one player can have a problem or be sick. I have dealt with many such situations».

D.B.: «It's different, very interesting».

P.M.: «Playing fields in Greece are not high quality ones. Unfortunately, that's a big problem. The whole mentality around football in Greece needs to change for the sport to progress. It's a very important factor».

David Blatt decided a little while ago to make his health issue public. How do you think this move can help other people?

D.B.: «First of all, I decided to do that to inspire others, not to have the attention on me, asking for sympathy or any kind of special treatment. I only wanted to inspire other people that face all kinds of difficulties. There are many people that cope with physical as well as psychological problems, with which they struggle on a daily basis. I simply wanted to give them the courage and the support they needed to come forward and talk about any problems they might be having and seek support from other people. As coaches, we teach our players to overcome adversity; either they are of physical or mental nature, of mood or of general circumstance. The easiest thing in life is to be making excuses and finding reasons not to do anything. I'm a basketball coach and if I told myself that physically I don't feel the same as I used to before, I can't do this or I don't have the motivation to do it, or I can't inspire my players to give their best, then this would go against everything we've been teaching them every day and believe as leaders. I feel I have the chance to continue working, continue helping players and people to show their best selves. That's what I was born to do, so that's my therapy, the best thing for me ».

P.M.: «What can I say, he's a life example. That not only inspires your players but also people that face similar or other problems or personal nature. You are an example. And as you said, you keep teaching your players to overcome adversity, anything negative that life throws at them. You are an example. The most important thing for me that I would like to keep is the passion you have for basketball, for your career, your professionalism. We have only talked once, this is the second one and I have watched some of your interviews. We all feel how passionate you are and I know that everyone with Olympiacos stand by you and love you, because you transmit this great passion of yours. Thank you for being a life example coach».

What's your relationship with the Olympiacos fans all that time and not just with them. How have you been treated?

P.M.: «I feel that fans respect our work, understands it. It's not easy for the millions of our fans to support us, but I feel you believe the same, because fans talk about your work Mr. Blatt. I think we have the same perception».

D.B.: «I have a wonderful story, a true story. I was driving to the gym a few days ago and stopped at the lights. A gentleman opened the window in the car next to mine and told me: How are you doing coach? I told him I was fine he said "Pedro has been doing an amazing job; we want you to be like him! An Olympiacos' fan, it was wonderful, made my day!».

Do you both watch the football and basketball teams' games respectively?

D.B.: «Everyone sees the results and it's only natural for sports fan. We coaches watch other things as well, not just results. We see how things are done. We see behind the results. Devotion, intelligence, tactics, dedication to perfection come first and when I watch the football team, that's what I feel, that's what I see. It's very important and it's inspirational because you know that results never come without those things. To say we want to win this or do that, that's easy, it has no value. Working, finding how your team is going to play in the best possible way and be the best it can be, that's the message I get when I watch the coach's team».

P.M.: «I believe they have a great coach and leader, and that's you coach. I didn't get to watch many games last season, but from parts of the games I did watch I witnessed your team's dedication and that they believe in their leader. I don't understand anything in terms of basketball tactics, but I can understand that the connection you have with the players and your leadership are the most important factors. The behaviors you teach them and the fact that they follow your leadership are very important. I wish you the best with the Euroleague and I'm sure I'm coming to watch a game».

So, which are the actual differences between basketball and football? (The question was answered later on, since the train of thinking was uncontrollable!):

D.B.: «I wish that one day basketball in England is as popular as football. It will be exciting for our sport».

P.M.: «We can some day play here or at Rentis mixing up our players and playing both football and basketball».

D.B.: «Coach, I'm certain the footballers are going to beat the basketball players, because I have seen many examples of American players trying to play football. It's really entertaining; it's the funniest thing I have ever seen. We have done it in the past, not with Olympiacos, but there had been days when we were recuperating and would be playing a little football as well. Watching your players play is hilarious! Because playing with your feet is much more difficult than playing with your hands. It requires not only a different but also a better skill set».

We have seen players of the two teams having a very good relationship, for example the one between Spanoulis and Fortounis. How important is this for the Club?

P.M.: «I think this is the family of Olympiacos. They love the team, they love sports. They feel the team each time they go to watch basketball games. Everyone loves the team. That's a good example for everyone. Olympiacos is a big team and the fans enjoy watching the players on the court being interested not only in their sport but also in the others».

D.B.: «Players like Fortounis and Spanoulis are great for a reason. Not simply because of goals and baskets. But because they are great people. And as the coach has said, that's important to the fans and especially the fans of Olympiacos. They feel that, they respect that and appreciate it. It's only normal they have a lot of respect for one another».

Next, the two coaches decided to exchange ideas on the theoretical approach of their sport, with each one presenting samples of his philosophy on the coach's board...

D.B.: «I think that spacing is very important in football as well. It allows each player to have freedom and at the same time to react to the ball movement or to that of a body. In our game, if for example the ball comes your way, you don't want to go to the ball, but move away from it. If player 1 comes towards player 2, then he needs to 'cut' inside and maintain the possibility of getting the ball, allowing the next player to take the pass, move and create space for himself. You always need to pay attention to spacing. Space to play. To 'read', to react and follow, not necessarily tactics, but to help your team mate free himself».

P.M.: «In football, everyone is talking about plays and systems. For me, the system is not the important thing, but rather the process. Spacing is fundamental both in basketball and in football. We have more space here but also more people and you need to figure out solutions. Two things are important when you lose the ball. To react and win it back and thus you have space. Sometimes we have this strategy. Some other times, we don't carry the ball, but we wait the moment we win it and come out in the transition. Or sometimes, we wait for the ball, but when we react we have a new offense, a counter attack. With small teams that's very important, because it's the moment you find them less organized. For me, more important than systems, 4-4-2, 4-3-3, 5-4-1, it's the process, what, our players are going to do against the specific opponent, using our process and our strategy».

A little before the finale of the meeting -that could have lasted for hours- and after exchanging phone numbers to have... coffee, they exchanged their coaching boards as well, with David Blatt not missing the opportunity to comment:

«Maybe this will help you, but it will certainly help me! I need 11 players for my defense, not just five, so then we can guard our opponents; that would be great!» and Pedro Martins adding:

«Thank you
it's a big inspiration!»

«One on one with ... Fortu and Spanoulis!»

Leonardo
Koutris

He plays in football shoes but is in love with the “orange Goddess”! (i.e.greek reference to the basketball).Leonardo Koutris reveals his weaknesses, apart from playing on a grass field...

He wanted to be a play-maker when young, he goes to the SEF really often, while his match ups against Kostas Fortounis on the court are one of a kind! Olympiacos’ defender and a great fan of the basketball team, invites the two ‘red’ captains on a one-on-one match up, siding with a surprise team mate!

Do you often go at the SEF, is basketball your second great love?

«The truth is I really love basketball, both playing and watching it, that’s why whenever I get the time I go to the gym to watch our team’s games. The atmosphere at the SEF, the high level of the team as well as the excitement of a Euroleague game are enough of a motivation for me to go to the gym in any given opportunity».

Πως βλέπεις το νέο ξεκίνημα της ομάδας στην Ευρωλίγκα; What’s your take on the team’s new beginning with the Euroleague?

«I think that the team has not succeeded in repeating the success of past seasons, but I believe we have the proper coach to get us back on track. Mr. David Blatt is with the team for the second season and now knows it better. I firmly believe that Olympiacos is going to be playing better this season. We have experienced players, with quality, but above all else, we have the required jersey for the team to progress. Mr. Blatt knows the way to lead his teams to success. He’s a coach that inspires his players and recently, by making his problem public, proved he can inspire people beyond basketball».

You also play basketball, which position do you prefer?

«‘When I was little, I used to play both football and basketball because I really loved them both, but in general, whenever I have the time I go to shoot some hoops by myself or in case I get company, for some friendly scrimmage. My favorite position can be no other than that of the play-maker because due to my height, I can’t play anything else. Anyway, that’s the position I would have chosen should I had become a basketball player, because you get to organize the team in every offensive play. It’s a key-position for basketball».

Are your match-ups against Kostas Fortounis a fact? And if so, who gets to win?

«Truth is there is a friendly rivalry with ‘Fortou’, because he also plays basketball a lot. We have the same ... sparing with other guys on the team when we get to play. We have many good basketball players on our team and we have very good games when we play. As for Kostas, he’s a better shooter than I am but I’m better at dribbling and driving».

With who would you like to be team mates so as to challenge Fortounis and Spanoulis?

«I think that this duo is very strong so I would need to have an equally strong player and team legend on my side, and that’s no other than Giorgos Printezis. We’ll be easily playing the pick n’ roll and ‘strike’ them in the post!».

Which game you got to watch live has been engraved in your memory and why?

«I have many team games in my memory. Great performances, important victories and significant qualifications that no one can forget. Nevertheless, if I had to choose one, I would be choosing last season’s Euroleague game against Panathinaikos, when the team had been ... terrifying to the opponent, as well as the fans in the gym. It was an unforgettable atmosphere, just like the team’s performance».

«It's a huge honor to play at the SEF»

Anna Niki Stamolamprou

Anna Niki Stamolamprou, from the women's basketball team of Olympiacos talked about the SEF, David Blatt's team and the player he admires on it.

She has been wearing the red jersey of the Olympiacos' women's basketball team and has won a double (Championship and Cup) with the Piraeus team.

Anna Niki Stamolamprou returned to our country for Olympiacos and is a member of the invincible Double Greek title holders, who have been undefeated in the Greek competitions for the past four years.

The Robert Morris graduate went to the SEF with the rest of the women's team to watch the friendly game against Crvena Zvezda.

The Olympiacos' guard talked about the atmosphere in the gym, the feeling to be playing in the historic stadium as well as about her take on David Blatt's team and her favorite player.

Last year you had the chance to be playing at the SEF with the women's team. What were your feelings when you first stepped on this historic court...

«I think that the fact we played our European games at the SEF last season was a unique experience. The Peace and Friendship Stadium is a basketball gem, is one of the hottest home courts and if you think about how many global basketball stars have played in this gym, you understand the value of playing in this very arena. It's a huge honor to be playing at the SEF».

What was your first take from the game against Crvena Zvezda?

«Despite the game being a friendly one, the Olympiacos fans once again showed their love and support for the team. It was an unequivocal game with nice plays and big buckets at the end. I'm certain the team is going to be more ready when the Euroleague games start».

How does it feel to be watching a men's game at the gym as a fan?

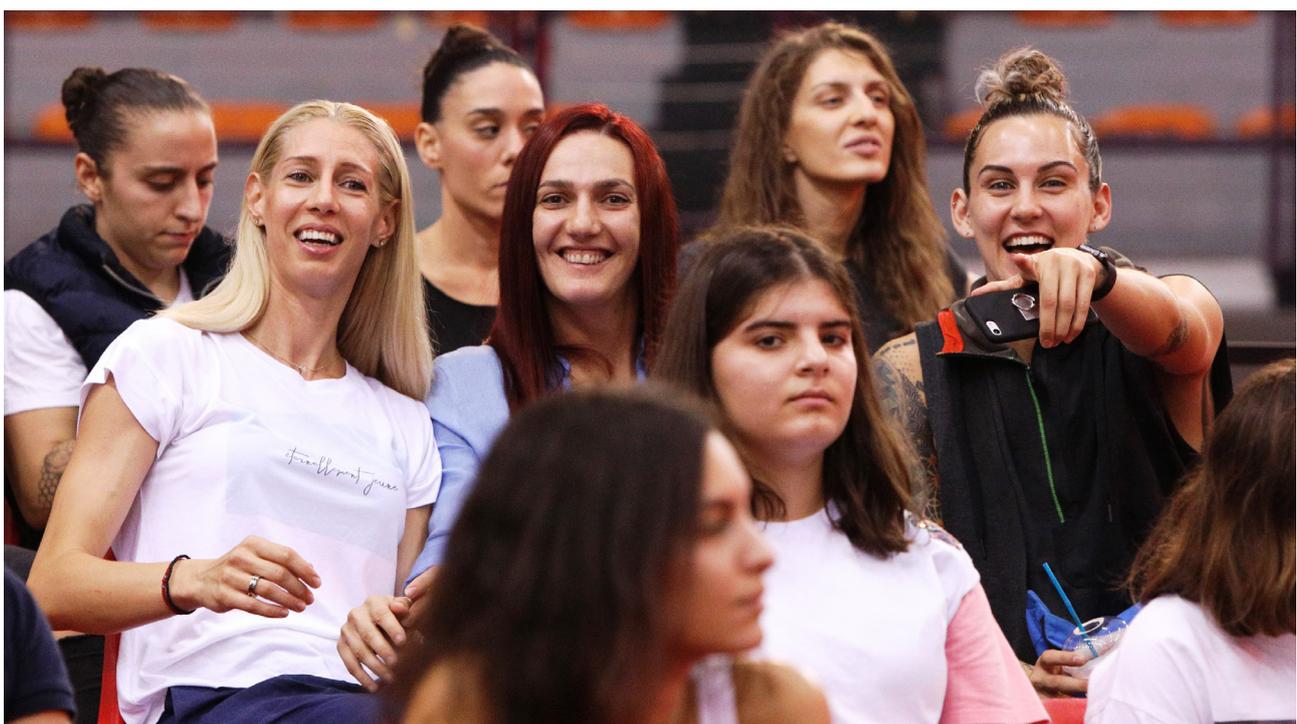

«I often come to the SEF to watch games of the men's team. I usually watch the games very carefully and I focus on the defensive and offensive tactics of the team. I definitely focus a little more on the players that play the guard positions trying to 'read' their moves and incorporate them in my game».

Who is the player that you admire the most and why?

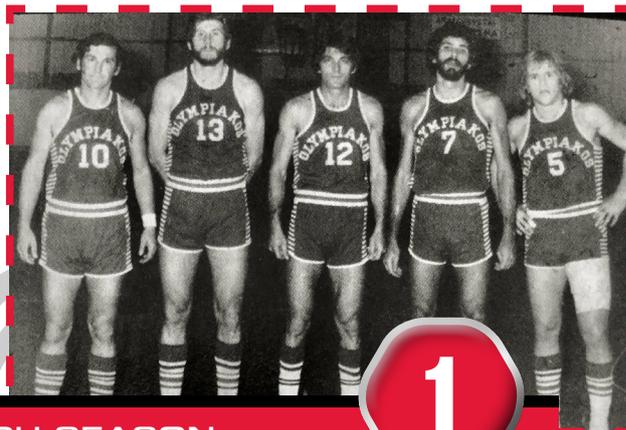

«Definitely Vassilis Spanoulis because we play the same position and I think he's one of the smartest players out there. His calmness when during difficult situation, his explosion when playing 1on1, his leadership skills and his choices close to the end of the game are only some of the attributes I admire the most».

If you could take three players from the current Olympiacos men's team to have as teammates, who would they be?

«I would choose Spanoulis, Printezis and Milutinov. I believe that all three have their own way to maximize their contribution with a team».
